BISBEE, ARIZ., AUGUST 17, 1900.

THE Louisville Courier-Journal says: "With the King of Italy wantonly shot down, with hundreds, perhaps thousands butchered in China because of their nationality or religion; with mobs killing people in the streets of New Orleans because of their color, and with men under trial in Kentucky for assassinating a citizen to prevent him from being governor, the civilization of the world is showing up conspicuously at present."

THE question of government interference in local affairs is not an issue in China. Last month, when riots were threatening in Canton, Li Hung Chang did not appeal to Friday Evening, August 17 the emperor at Peking, nor apply to a local court for an injunction. He simply arrested and executed two thousand rioters and suspects and what was left of their bodies he turned over to their relatives in detached pieces. Some of the bodies were buried with the wrong heads, and some of the heads with the wrong bodies, and in some cases doubtless the undertakers charged double prices. One of the leading rioters was a Boxer named Chang. Li Hung Chang.

THE Star of last Sunday contained a very pleasant write up of the town it so ably represents. The climate of the locality is touched upon, and the peculiar attractions of the old pueblo are set forth. Senator Ingalls joined in the praise so generally accorded to this city, and very properly mentioned the fact that this town is an orderly, well governed city, as much as any Kansas city. This is a fact too, as our own citizens can vouch. The following extracts from the article are interesting: "Tucson is known far and wide for two quite distinct reasons, first, as a pleasure and health resort, and second as the center of the extensive agricultural, stock-raising and mining industries of southern Arizona. For the nine colder months of the year Tucson is an ideal city in which to live. The climate may be compared with Italy. There is but little frost. The sun shines nearly the whole time, and rainy days are very rare. Flowers bloom during the entire winter, and much of the shrubberv retains its foliage. This is the dryest time of the whole year, and as compared with southern California winter climate Tucson and its vicinity are far superior in every respect, according to the statement respective for the statement of the statement is an output of the statement of the statement of the whole year, and as compared with southern California winter climate Tucson and its vicinity are far superior in every respect, according to the statement of the whole year, and an output of the statement of the whole year, and as compared with southern California winter climate Tucson and its vicinity are far superior in every respect, according to the statement of the whole year, and an output of the statement of the whole year, and as compared with southern California winter climate Tucson and its vicinity are far superior in every respect, according to the statement of the statement o vicinity are far superior in every respect, according to the statement of those who have tried both places. Senator J. J. Ingalls, in one of his published letters, speake as follows: 'I regret that I did not come earlier to Tucson. It is said to be hotter than a crematory in summer, but the winter weather is certainly incomparable, if what I have experienced so far is a sample. The dryness, the stillness, the brightness, the inexplicable charm of mountain, plain and sky; the hues of sunset and dawn, the splendor of the stars, the vague blue mystery of the horizon; the old quaint town with its queer people and their habits; its gambling dens open on the main streets day and night; its cowboys and miners and tramps and toughs and gentlemen, all make a scene of indescribable interest and enchantment. Mexicans, Indians, Negroes' Chinamen and Americans, with half a dozen different languages and lingoes, make up the constantly changing dor of the stars, the vague blue

IT is generally reported that more shooting had to be done by an officer of this town the other thority.
